Introduction

The format of the teenage tournament has always aimed to give all confederations an equal chance, especially in this developing age group. In 2007, the number of participating teams was increased from 16 to 24, and the places allocated amongst the confederations as follows: AFC 4, CAF 4, CONCACAF 4, CONMEBOL 4, UEFA 5, OFC 2, and the host country 1.

From 1985 to 1993, matches were played over two 40-minute halves (extra time was ten minutes each way). In Ecuador in 1995, the standard duration of matches was increased to the traditional format of 45 minutes per half (with 15 minutes per half in extra time). In 2011, extra time was abolished for the FIFA U-17 World Cup and the FIFA U-17 Women's World Cup after a proposal put forward by the FIFA Medical Committee and the FIFA Task Force Football 2014.

Facts to know about the FIFA U-17 World Cup

➤	The 2019 edition in Brazil was the 18 th FIFA U-17 World Cup.
➤	The competition was first held in 1985 and has since been held by all six confederations: Africa (twice, in Egypt and Nigeria), Asia (five times, in India, Korea Republic, China PR, Japan and the United Arab Emirates), Oceania (once, in New Zealand), North, Central America and the Caribbean (three times, in Canada, Trinidad & Tobago and Mexico), Europe (three times, in Scotland, Italy and Finland) and South America, (four times, previously in Ecuador, Peru, Chile, and Brazil).
➤	Up to and including the 2005 edition, the tournament was played with 16 teams, which was increased to 24 as of 2007.
➤	A total of 85 associations have taken part in the FIFA U-17 World Cup to date.
➤	Of the 23 associations that have qualified just once for the tournament, only Switzerland (2009) won the title at their first and so far only participation.
➤	Excluding the first edition of the tournament in 1985, the highest number of debutants was seven in 1987, 1989 and 2007.
➤	Angola, Senegal and Solomon Islands were the most recent debutants at the tournament in Brazil in 2019.
➤	With 60 wins in the under-17 age group, Brazil lead the all-time ranking followed by Nigeria with 48 wins.
➤	Seven of the 18 tournaments have been won by two African teams – Ghana (2) and Nigeria (5), which is also the most number of titles won by any confederation.
➤	Nigeria have reached eight finals (1985, 1987, 1993, 2001, 2007, 2009, 2013 and 2015) and won five, in 1985, 1993, 2007, 2013 and 2015.
➤	Ghana reached the final four times in a row (1991, 1993, 1995 and 1997), winning twice (1991 and 1995).
➤	Brazil have made it to the final on six occasions (1995, 1997, 1999, 2003, 2005, and 2019), winning four times (in 1997, 1999, 2003, and 2019).
➤	As for the number of times that teams have taken part, the USA and Brazil (17 apiece) are practically evergreens, ahead of Argentina and Mexico (14).
➤	Only Brazil and Nigeria have successfully defended their title: Brazil (1997 in Egypt and 1999 in New Zealand) and Nigeria (2013 in the UAE and 2015 in Chile).
➤	The highest average number of goals per match was recorded at the 1997 and 2003 tournaments in Egypt and Finland (3.66 goals per match), followed by India 2017 (3.52) and Peru 2005 (3.47).
➤	716 matches have been played since the inaugural tournament in China PR in 1985.

➤	Brazil have contested the most matches (89), followed by Nigeria (67) and Argentina and Mexico (65).
➤	Nigeria have won an impressive 72% of their 67 FIFA U-17 World Cup games, followed by Brazil with 67% of 89. Switzerland is the only team to have won 100% of their matches but have only played seven.
➤	Fifteen different teams have played in a FIFA U-17 World Cup final, and nine different teams have lifted the trophy. Thirty-two sides, with every confederation represented, have reached the semi-finals, indicating a considerably level playing field in this age group.
➤	In 1987, 1989, 1999 and 2007, the final was decided on penalties and on each occasion, a team from a different confederation came out on top.
➤	Three times have teams from the same confederation met in the final, with Ghana playing Nigeria in 1993, Nigeria meeting Mali in 2015, and England against Spain in 2017.

History

A glance over the years serves to illustrate how the organisers of the past championships endowed each one with an individual flavour.

CHINA PR 1985

The inaugural FIFA U-16 competition in 1985 – the first international football tournament to be held in China PR – saw stadiums filled to capacity, and the Workers' Stadium in Beijing, with a capacity of 80,000, packed to the rafters no fewer than four times. African supremacy, which was to leave its mark on championships in later years, began to assert itself, with Nigeria emerging as the winners and Guinea reaching the semi-finals.

CANADA 1987

The sprawling cities of Toronto and Montreal and the picturesque provincial venues of Saint John (New Brunswick) and St. John's (Newfoundland) provided the backdrop to the second FIFA Under-16 World Tournament in Canada in 1987. Nigeria were on the verge of repeating their 1985 triumph in a thrilling final only to be downed by the Soviet Union in a penalty shoot-out.

SCOTLAND 1989

1989 was the turn of the first European country, namely Scotland, with its long and sophisticated tradition in professional football, to host this FIFA championship. At the memorable final in Glasgow's Hampden Park, a crowd of more than 50,000 watched transfixed as the home team, two goals up at half-time, allowed Saudi Arabia to creep up on them and narrowly beat them on penalties after a goalless extra time.

ITALY 1991

The Italian FA pulled off a feat of organisational prowess at very short notice when it managed to arrange yet another "Italian summer". A series of unforgettable matches at six venues scattered all over Tuscany, culminating in technically superior, irresistible winners from Ghana, was the mark of this first U-17 World Championship. In 1991, the age limit for the tournament was raised from U-16 to U-17.

JAPAN 1993

In 1993 (shortly after the triumphant launch of the J. League), the Japanese proved themselves to be perfect and, above all, technologically superb organisers. Nigeria beat Ghana 2-1 in the final, setting new standards in technique and tactics for this age category.

ECUADOR 1995

Ghana's youngsters made it three in a row for Africa as they swept to a thrilling 3-2 victory over Brazil in the final of the 1995 U-17 World Championship in Guayaquil, Ecuador.

EGYPT 1997

Brazil became the first South American team to win the U-17 World Championship and added the FIFA/JVC Cup to its unparalleled list of international honours. In a repeat of the 1995 U-17 final in Ecuador, Brazil encountered Ghana but this time the roles were reversed. While two years earlier the Africans had held the upper hand, winning 3-2 in the final, this time it was Brazil who came out on top, coming from a goal behind to snatch a dramatic victory from the holders. Africa was the only continent that saw all of their teams – three – make it to the last eight.

NEW ZEALAND 1999

On a day when football in New Zealand set a new record for U-17 crowd attendance, Brazil edged out Australia 8-7 in a penalty shoot-out to retain their crown. A crowd of 22,859 spectators crammed into the stadium to watch. The Aussies, who had made it to their first-ever FIFA final, came close to pipping Brazil with a couple of excellent chances.

TRINIDAD & TOBAGO 2001

France won their first FIFA U-17 World Championship in comprehensive fashion, leading throughout the entire tournament thanks to the lethal strike partnership of Florent Sinama Pongolle and Anthony Le Tallec. Sinama Pongolle scored nine goals, the most in a single U-17 World Championship.

FINLAND 2003

Brazil triumphed 1-0 over Spain at Helsinki's Töölö stadium to become U-17 world champions for the third time. Although the eventful final produced the strike that equalled the all-time record for the most goals at a single FIFA U-17 World Championship (117 at Egypt 97), the final did not live up to the raucous goalscoring standards of Finland 2003. As always, the competition showcased a wealth of young talent, with the USA's remarkable 14-year-old Freddy Adu leaving a lasting impression.

PERU 2005

After Ecuador in 1995, Peru became the second South American country to host the FIFA U-17 World Championship. With total attendance figures of over half a million spectators, Peru 2005 is in third place in the all-time FIFA U-17 World Championship ranking behind China PR 1985 and Egypt 1997. Triumphant Mexico sealed their first FIFA World Championship title at youth level, cruising past Brazil 3-0 in the final.

KOREA REPUBLIC 2007

In 2007, the tournament was held on Asian soil for the third time and, having scaled the heights at China 1985 and Japan 1993, Nigeria left the continent with their third global crown. The Golden Eaglets also completed a virtual clean sweep of all the other accolades up for grabs at Korea Republic 2007. They edged past Spain on penalties in the final, and their ranks also boasted the adidas Golden Shoe and adidas Silver Ball winner – Macauley Chrisantus.

NIGERIA 2009

This was the second time, following Egypt in 1997, that the FIFA U-17 World Cup had been held on African soil. Switzerland, who were taking part in their first U-17 World Cup, claimed the title with a 1-0 win over Nigeria in the final in Abuja. For the hosts and defending champions, the defeat meant that they narrowly missed out on becoming the first country to win four U-17 crowns, a feat that would have seen them pull clear of Brazil.

MEXICO 2011

The tournament was hosted by CONCACAF for the third time following Canada in 1987 and Trinidad & Tobago in 2001. By defeating Uruguay 2-0 at the legendary Azteca Stadium in Mexico City, hosts Mexico claimed the title for the second time, the first being in 2005. Uruguay reached the final for the first time.

UNITED ARAB EMIRATES 2013

The FIFA U-17 World Cup UAE 2013 featured exciting matches and stunning results, with the young Nigerians claiming the trophy by overcoming Mexico in the final. The Africans therefore became the only country to win the tournament four times, surpassing the achievements of Brazil, crowned champions on three occasions.

CHILE 2015

Nigeria became the first country to win the title for a fifth time, and with Mali also reaching the final, Chile 2015 had the first all-African final since 1993 when Nigeria saw off Ghana. There was another surprise team on the last step of the podium, with Belgium taking bronze despite being less fancied than other European participants, such as France and Germany, who both shone before being knocked out in the round of 16.

INDIA 2017

The tournament was won by England after a thrilling 5-2 victory in the final against Spain. There was plenty to celebrate throughout the competition with a record number of 183 goals, the most of any U-17 World Cup edition which was also watched by record attendances totalling 1.35 million spectators across the country.

BRAZIL 2019

The final day at the FIFA U-17 World Cup Brazil 2019™ came to a close with an increasingly familiar scene: Brazil raising the trophy aloft as world champions. A Seleção collected their fourth U-17 crown after an emotional 2-1 triumph over Mexico in the final. The Brazilians have now moved within one title of equalling record holders Nigeria.

All-time top goalscorers

The world champions have only managed to crown one of their own as top goalscorer on five occasions: Nigeria's Wilson Oruma in 1993, Florent Sinama Pongolle for France in 2001, Mexico's Carlos Vela in 2005, Victor Osimhen for Nigeria in 2015, and England's Rhian Brewster in 2017.

Two players scored in two different editions: Marco Etcheverry (BOL) one goal in 1985 and one in 1987 and Emmanuel Duah (GHA) one in 1991 and three in 1993.

Players

From all the U-17 FWC's, 210 players have gone on to appear in the FIFA World Cup™ (not including the 47 players who were not fielded).

Three have played in both a FIFA U-17 as well as a FIFA World Cup final match; Ronaldinho lifting the trophy at the FU17WC 1997 & FIFA World Cup 2002, Fabregas (ESP) and Silva (ESP) runners-up in the FIFA U-17WC 2003 and champions at the FIFA World Cup in 2010.

Thirteen also played in a FWC final match and came out on top- Frenchman Emmanuel Petit in 1998 (France – Brazil), Brazil's Ronaldinho in 2002 (Germany – Brazil), Italy's Buffon, Del Piero and Totti in 2006 (Italy – France), Spain's Casillas, Fabregas, Iniesta, Torres and Xavi in 2010 (Spain – Netherlands), Germany's Mario Götze and Toni Kroos in 2014 (Germany – Argentina), and Benjamin Mendy in 2018 (France – Croatia).

Three of them have scored in a FIFA World Cup final - The Frenchman Emmanuel Petit (1998), Spain's Andres Iniesta (2010) and Germany's Mario Götze (2014). Spain's goalkeeper Iker Casillas is the only one to have lifted the FIFA World Cup Trophy as captain (2010). Brazil's Ronaldinho is the only player to win both the FIFA U-17 (1997) and the FIFA World Cup (2002) title.

Coaches

Juan Santisteban coached Spain on seven different occasions, but did not finish higher than second (1991, 2003, and 2007). Nigeria's Sebastian Broderick coached teams at four different tournaments and won in 1985. Roy Rees (USA) and Les Scheinflug (AUS) also coached teams at four different tournaments but failed to win a title.

Referees

The U-17 FWC has also served as a springboard for referees, some of whom officiated at important matches during subsequent World Cups – Said Belqola from Morocco was the first African referee appointed for a FIFA World Cup final (1998, France v. Brazil; he sadly passed away after a long illness in June 2002); South African Achmat Salie also officiated in this final as an assistant referee. England’s Philip Sharp was also an assistant for the Germany v. Brazil final in 2002. The honour of officiating a final was also bestowed upon Costa Rican assistant referee Berny Ulloa Morera (Argentina – Germany 1986), Argentinian referees Horacio Elizondo (Italy – France 2006) and Nestor Pitana (France – Croatia 2018) and English referee Howard Webb (Spain – Netherlands 2010).

Spectators

The highest accumulative total audience for a FIFA U-17 World Cup was registered in India in 2017 with 1,347,133 (average 25,906) whereas in China 1985 it reached the highest average of 38,469 spectators per match. Crowds of 80,000 or more have watched a single U-17 World Cup match on eight occasions; five times in China PR in 1985, twice in Mexico in 2011, and once in Egypt in 1997 for Egypt v. Germany. A new attendance record was set during the 2011 tournament as 98,943 spectators turned up to watch Mexico claim the title in the final against Uruguay at the Azteca Stadium in Mexico City. The second-highest mark was also set in 2011 at the match for third place when 94,379 people watched Brazil play Germany, again at the Azteca Stadium.
